

As Chief Executive Officer of Leukemia and Lymphoma Foundation (LLF) in Singapore, my focus lies with driving compassionate blood cancer care through strategic leadership, patient support initiatives, and sector leadership. My role encompasses fostering a sustainable social care ecosystem while addressing the needs of individuals and families affected by blood cancers.

With 20 years of leadership experience in healthcare, including roles in hospital operations, global partnerships, and organisational development, my expertise bridges clinical realities with community-based solutions. I am dedicated to strengthening LLF's patient-centered mission by leveraging collaboration and innovative strategies to improve this social service space.
